Rebound Neurosurgery Opens a New Brain and Spine Center at Southwest Washington Medical Center

Rebound Neurosurgeons open an office dedicated to treating their neurosurgical patients

October 19, 2009 - Vancouver, WA – Rebound Neurosurgery will open a new Brain and Spine Center at Southwest Washington Medical Center on October 19, 2009. There will be an open house for physicians, hospital staff, and the public on November 12, 2009 from 4:30pm – 7:30pm.

The new suite is the only office exclusively dedicated to serving neurosurgical patients in Southwest Washington. The Rebound doctors worked with the architects to ensure the design meets the needs unique to their patients. “Our goal was to develop a space to provide better overall patient care. The new office is light and soothing to create a calming atmosphere for patients. We also employed state of the art medical technological platforms for efficiencies, which ultimately allows for an enhanced work environment for both patients and physicians,” according to Dr. Ashok Modha, Rebound neurosurgeon.

Rebound Neurosurgery was originally founded by Dr. Tom Dietrich in Vancouver in 1971. Later, as the practice grew, the neurosurgeons joined the Vancouver Orthopedic Group in 1994 to form the united team now known as Rebound Orthopedics & Neurosurgery. The neurosurgery group is now comprised of five neurosurgeons, two nurse practitioners, and one physician assistant, each with respective subspecialties. Our doctors are Hoang N. Le, M.D., Ashok Modha, M.D., FRCSC, Wael Y. Musleh, M.D., Ph.D., Norman Rokosz, M.D., George B. Shanno, M.D.

“Rebound is pleased to offer a complete range of neurosurgical sub-specialists including spine, oncology, and endo-vascular neurosurgery.” Said Dave Bennett, Rebound CEO. “This breadth of service is unusual for a community of our size.”
